To whom this may concern,

I am writing this letter in regards to my cancellation on my patent.

I am trying to provide as much proof as possible that I did everything in my power to see that the money would arrive on time (August 17, 2008).

I appreciate the opportunity you are giving me to try and make this right. Any questions feel free to contact me

To whom this may concern,

I Kirk Lilly am writing this letter in regards to the maintenance fee. I was laid off back in May of 2008 and was struggling coming up with the money. When I came up with the money I was able to send it off on the 14th of August, my deadline was the 17th of August. I Fed Exed the check on the 14th and somehow did not make it in time. I was told if I had used US Post office there would have been something you could have done about it. I take full responsibility for the check not arriving on time, but I ask if there is anything that could be done with my situation I would greatly appreciate it. If possible could there be another ~~that~~ date that the check could be sent. If not it will most likely take the full two years to come up with the fines and penalties. I am in my 50's and only make 10<sup>00</sup> / hour and struggle through life, I ask you to find it in your heart to have mercy, and give me another chance to get the money sent.

Sincerely,
Kirk Wallace Lilly

Dear Mr. Lilly:

This letter is provided to document the difficulties you experienced with delivery of your Express Mail sent on 8/15/08. It is my understanding the Express Letter was delayed. As a result, you may receive late fees and interest charges from your correspondents. I regret you did not receive the service you deserve and expect.

Perhaps by providing a copy of this letter to your creditors, this information may be used in judging the appropriateness of any penalties you may be assessed. Past experience has shown many companies willingly review their customer's file and often waive any penalty or late fees when it is apparent delayed or missed payment is not the fault of their customer.

Please accept my apology for the inconvenience this has caused.

Sincerely,

Maria Almada
